Dear Sir -

Scottish Opera, of which I have been a "Friend" for many years, made me aware of your letter to the press. I would just like to say that, in a modern, open minded society, opera should not be considered elitist: we need all the government support possible to encourage all the arts &, naturally, all the sports possible: our people are of a wide & varied character & inclination & everyone's tastes should be able to be satisfied.

Please don't waste your (probably very limited!) resources replying to my letter. I am just happy to swell the supporters of all forms of art — opera especially in Scotland because we do have a wonderful company —

Yours faithfully,

(Miss) Maureen D. Hornblow
